PRODUCT-DESCRIPTION

Product Name : Portable Mechanical Ventilator

Developed By : Anandha Krishnan U B, Kiran Rajendran, Subin K John & Vithun Lal
, Department of ME , Students of 2017-2021 Batch

Guide : Mr. Amal R ,Asst.Prof ME

Abstract:

Portable ventilators are devices that are provided mechanical ventilation in settings where piped gas and mains electricity is not available. Due to COVID-19 situations the need for portable ventilator has increased. Because of this situation there is need for a low cost ventilator design to replace manual ventilation by ambu (Artificial manual Breathing Unit) bag pressing. This project consist of the design of a low-cost portable mechanical ventilator which can easily be constructed and can replace the ambu bag pressing ventilation. This ventilator design has an easy control system with knob to regulate tidal volume, I:E ratio and breath per ratio and breath per minute. These parameters are displayed on inbuilt screen on the device. It is IOT enabled so that a doctor can easily monitor the conditions of the patients from anywhere in the world. The ventilator data's can be adjusted according to doctor's suggestions by a caretaker. By using SPO2 sensor it can continuously monitor patient's oxygen level in blood. And heart rate (BPM) is also monitored. The data are displayed on a computer screen or smartphone.

The following specification are achieved on the device.

- PEEP (usually achieved by a peep device, the value vary accordingly)
- CMV mode of ventilation
- I:E ratios (either 1 or 2)
- Tidal volume (300-550)
- Works on main supply as well as battery (230 V AC ,12 V DC)
